Table of Contents

This document presents the latest flow trends for fixed-income mutual funds and ETFs that primarily invest in USD-denominated investment-grade bonds, high-yield bonds and leveraged loans.

The charts contained in this document capture the last 1m of daily flows, the last 6m of weekly flows, and the last 2yr of monthly flows. Additional sections present separate flow trends for short-maturity and long-maturity IG funds; provide insight on WTD, MTD, and YTD flows; and show AUM trends by asset class.

Fund category classifications are determined by Citi analysts based upon a variety of factors, including vendor classification, fund holdings, and other characteristics. Mutual fund flow data is provided by LSEG Lipper, while ETF flow data is provided by Bloomberg. The IG category excludes Treasury-focused funds, but includes funds benchmarked to aggregate IG indexes.

WTD (Week-to-Date), MTD (Month-to-Date), and YTD (Year-to-Date) figures are aggregated from fund-level net flows within custom-defined categories of IG and HY funds. Fewer investment managers provide net flows at a daily frequency than provide net flows covering only full-week or full-month periods. To ensure broadest coverage, we aggregate flows within lower frequency datasets, filling in gaps with higher frequency datasets where necessary.
